The following is a portion of a substantially verbatim transcript of a conversation between an Unknown Male, DORFMAN: Allen Dorfman and WEISER: Morrie Weiser:

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

DORFMAN: But what was linked with the last article? I was the man influential in securing the loans for the Riviera, the Dunes, the Stardust.

UNKNOWN MALE: The papers that I read, they mentioned anything except for the Aladdin. You're influential in having loans made the last three years.

DORFMAN: That's right.

WEISER: That's what I read. Without the specific loan.

DORFMAN: Well they, they the other articles were specific.

WEISER: Forget about the, about articles, you read the affidavit?

UNKNOWN MALE: The affidavits apparently are just verbatim of the bugging that in the papers.

DORFMAN: Yes, but it doesn't have me on, on, on, on any of the bugs. It just throws me in there in, in references.

UNKNOWN MALE: You mean, your name, your name mentioned.

DORFMAN: That's right. There's nothing in the telephone conversations.
MALE: The bugging?

DORFMAN: Right.

MALE: Your name was mentioned. Okay.

WEISER: Where did you get the association?

DORFMAN: But that's all they just list a bunch of names, you know, as to why, the, the, government to wire, they wanted these phones tapped.

MALE: Oh, this is the reason for.

DORFMAN: Yeah!

MALE: Well, how about the reason for...

DORFMAN: Eleven hundred things. The only reference in there was one, one time, one time it said...

MALE: That's what I'm asking about.

DORFMAN: That, that the DORFMAN plan didn't go through. The DORFMAN plan was to acquire the Stardust and that was the DORFMAN plan. That was a, gotten a group of guys together. They were legitimate guys that wanted to buy the Stardust and this guy wanted to sell. Now, tell me, what's illegal about it?

MALE: ALLEN, ALLEN, all I'm saying it's illegal. You were making all the phone calls. There's no question about that.

DORFMAN: I am asking about the legalities. All I am asking. Not bullshit conversation from you.
UNKNOWN MALE: I'm not talking about bullshit.

DORFMAN: Tell me about, tell me about what is wrong with that. You want to sell, you want to sell your place and I have a group.

UNKNOWN MALE: You're the broker in the deal, yes?

DORFMAN: As a matter of fact I wasn't even the God damn broker in the group.

UNKNOWN MALE: I don't mean that but, you were negotiating and the...up.

DORFMAN: I didn't even do the negotiate--, I introduced them. I did not do the negotiating.

UNKNOWN MALE: On the fucking phone. I was right here when you were making the phone calls.

DORFMAN: What negotiations did I do?

UNKNOWN MALE: Price.

DORFMAN: Yes, which was the price they established.

UNKNOWN MALE: And certain terms.

DORFMAN: That's correct.

WEISER: What would be your interest in it? What's your interest?

UNKNOWN MALE: That's beside the point.
DORFMAN: I'll tell you what my interest...
WEISER: That would be the question.
DORFMAN: I'll tell you what my interest would be primarily. The honest to God truth, to be, to be honest with you. They only pay me about three million dollars a year in premium. Insurance premium. See, that's a valid enough interest.

UNKNOWN MALE: What kind of premium?
DORFMAN: Health and Welfare, Casualty.
UNKNOWN MALE: Health and Welfare. They don't pay you health and welfare.
DORFMAN: What the fuck are you talking about? They pay the insurance company. I get a commission on it, don't I. You fucking idiot. That's the way these guys... You, you, you know from shit don't you about this, this shit. They pay over three million dollars a year in premiums of which I get commissions on.

UNKNOWN MALE: And your service?
DORFMAN: That's correct. Think it's worthwhile having an interest.
UNKNOWN MALE: No, not a interest. Having an interest and seeing,
DORFMAN: Seeing that.
UNKNOWN MALE: that certain groups in.
DORFMAN: That's right. It happens to be absolute fucking fact. What fucking irritates me is fact, absolute fact. Didn't I talk to you guys about going into it?

UNKNOWN MALE: Well that's what we're through talking about for Christ's sake. We're talking about it.

DORFMAN: Oh! Talks to me about fucking bullshit.

UNKNOWN MALE: Your answer's a good one.

DORFMAN: The, the answers that happens to be the absolute fact. I had judged it...in Ceasar's Palace. The moment, the a, the a, the crew went in and loaned the money I was out wasn't I? They only paid me about four million dollars a year. But I lost it, didn't I?

UNKNOWN MALE: Lost it because some other group came in.

DORFMAN: Huh, the Prudential came in. Loaned them the money, says there's nothing you lost the insurance?

WEISER: Eh.

DORFMAN: These, these are facts, these are, and I would be more than happy to parade guys like, like you in. You're God damn right we were interested in buying it. Why not, it's profitable. Can be made it extremely profitable and it was a good business. Was it, was it or was it not a good business deal for you?

UNKNOWN MALE: I would say...

DORFMAN: You're fucking well right. Look at the figures to see if it was a good business for you or not.
